The Role of Curiosity-Driven Research"

25-27 October 2018, Buenos Aires/Argentina

Call for Papers and Posters

Deadline: 2 July 2018

The Alexander von Humboldt Foundation promotes academic cooperation between excellent scientists and scholars from Germany and countries around the world. To this end, it grants more than 700 research fellowships and research awards annually to individual researchers who become life-long members of the international network of more than 29,000 alumni, the so-called "Humboldtians" (<http://www.humboldt-foundation.de>).

In 2018, the Humboldt Foundation will hold a three-day interdisciplinary symposium in Buenos Aires, Argentina, to explore the opportunities and challenges of collaborative partnerships between Argentina, Uruguay and Germany in education and research. The Humboldt Foundation is expecting about 200 participants, half of them being Humboldt alumni and half of them being early career researchers from leading universities and research institutions across Argentina and Uruguay.

The Colloquium will feature interdisciplinary workshops and a poster session. Each of these will give prominent space to early career researchers from all fields allowing them to present their current work to more senior and established researchers with strong international experience and connections. The Colloquium will also give the opportunity to seek personal advice on sponsorship opportunities for international collaboration from representatives of the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation and other German science funding organisations.

The Alexander von Humboldt Foundation invites advanced PhD students as well as scientists and scholars who received their PhD degree fewer than 10 years ago to submit an application to participate in the three-day colloquium and present a short paper during the workshops and/or a poster during the poster session.

Applications are accepted until 2 July 2018 under the following link:

The preliminary programme, general information and advice for presenting papers and/or posters are also available on this site. The conference language will be English.

All applications will be reviewed by a committee of Humboldt alumni as well as staff of the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation. The selection of the participants is being based on the abstracts, curricula vitae and lists of publications submitted. All applicants will be notified by the beginning of September the latest.

The Alexander von Humboldt Foundation will cover the costs for the participation of early career researchers in the three-day programme (coffee breaks, meals, conference materials). Those attending from outside Buenos Aires will receive a conference allowance to help cover travel and accommodation costs. Information on allowances depending on your place of departure will be available on the site.
